

Riding for the Disabled SA

On-the-web: May 2011

RDA volunteers gently help young Gage ride safely at Victor Harbor.

One volunteer holds the pony, two volunteers support Gage and a fourth volunteer holds the umbrella!

This is a normal horse riding lesson for Gage, who can barely sit up unaided.

When he first came to RDA all he could do was lie on his back on the pony. He had to be shaded by an umbrella to keep the sun out of his eyes.

Now he sits up. He can't wear a hat, so he still needs an extra volunteer to carry an umbrella for him. He places his right hand across his left breast when he wants to say "happy".

RDA can't operate in bad weather. Children like Gage miss out on their horse-therapy.

It's the dream of all RDA volunteers to have access to an arena shaded from the sun, sheltered from the wind and rain, so they can give year-round riding lessons to people like Gage who have disabilities. Riding under an umbrella is OK; how much better would Gage be if he could ride in a proper shaded, sheltered arena.
